Business networking guru in Malta

Business networking expert Will Kintish will be holding a seminar on the secrets behind networking next month at the Westin Dragonara Hotel.

The subject has become one of the most discussed issues in the business world today since networking is vital for the growth and survival of any business. Having a good product or service to sell means nothing if one cannot find the potential clients to whom to sell it.

Will Kintish is today considered a world authority on the subject after running over 3,000 hours of business networking training and giving training presentations to over 30,000 people.

For those who have already had the opportunity to attend one of his seminars, he has proved inspirational and his unique presentation method is also most entertaining with hands-on participation by the attendees.

The main aim of the seminar is to help delegates become more confident and effective business networkers by destroying all fears of working the room, helping delegates to be in control, be able to break the ice and to start a conversation with strangers.

Above all this seminar will ensure that delegates leave every event with a potential business opportunity, revealing to them how to raise their profile and meet more people.

Those interested in learning about reactions and feedback on the Kintish Experience visit

The Kintish Experience will be held at the Westin Dragonara Hotel on 16 February between 9am and 5pm. Attendance is limited and acceptance is on first come first served basis. Booking will open today.

For more information about the seminar contact seminar@mgimalta.com or call 2180-2044 or 9949-3668.
